3 Essential items For Special Needs Trusts

1. An Individual with special needs can now establish a first party Special Needs Trust (SNT) for themselves.

The biggest change that this new law made was the ability for an individual with special needs to create an SNT themselves.

2. The trust established by the person with special needs, can receive the same benefits as a trust established by others.

Those disabled individuals under the age of 65 can set up a first party special needs trust that has the same benefits as a first party SNT set up by a parent, legal guardian, or the court.

3. One of the goals is to support the independence of people with Special Needs.

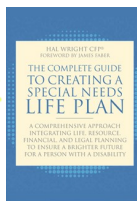

Special needs trusts are one of a few ways people with special needs can acquire assets without losing government benefits. This new law makes it easier and less expensive, enabling and empowering those with special needs to secure their future.

The Complete Guide To Creating A Special Needs Life Plan

This book provides comprehensive guidance on creating a life plan to transition a child with special needs to independence or to ensure they are well cared for in the future.

Hal Wright explains how to form a practical plan to reach these goals, how to mentor personal empowerment and task skills, and how to create circles of support to sustain a life plan. He discusses employment and residential options, and government programs available in the United States. Hal talks the reader through important financial and legal considerations, including how to fund and manage a special needs trust.

Assistance with Special Needs Trusts or Survivor Benefits Plan is also available though the EFMP Attorney.

Understanding Accessible Housing: The Fair Housing Act

An accessible home is one that allows its occupant to do what he or she wants and needs to do, as independently as possible. If you or someone in your family has a disability, your home may need specific modifications to make it accessible for daily living. You are protected under the Fair Housing Act, which requires property owners to make, or allow residents to make, a home accessible for those with special needs. This applies to military installation housing.

Privatized Housing for Military Members with a Family Member with Special Needs

In privatized housing on military installations, property managers are required to make reasonable modifications and accommodations that abide by the Americans With Disabilities Act at no cost to the tenant.

Housing Modifications & the EFMP Enrollment Letter

HQMC EFMP provides endorsements for housing modifications as a component of the enrollment/update process. Housing modifications and priority housing considerations will be annotated directly on the enrollment letter. When residing in Marine Corps base housing, the EFMP enrollment letter can be used as medical verification when requesting Reasonable Accommodations.

Some accommodations/modifications noted by a family member's medical provider may be allowed on a case by case basis, as determined by the housing provider. Federal laws and regulations will be applied in making the determinations. Some requests, while approved by the housing provider, may be at the sponsor's expense.

Did you know?

The USMC EFMP provides families with an EFMP attorneys who can provide advice on legal assistance issues unique to families with special needs, including landlord-tenant issues related to accommodations. EFMP Attorney cannot advise or represent families in matters pertaining to base or PPV housing, but can coordinate access to legal representation as necessary.
